132. What is meant by the term "political system?" What are the two related dimensions by which a political system can be assessed?

A country's "political system" is its system of government. Political systems can be assessed according to two related dimensions. The first is the degree to which they emphasize collectivism as opposed to individualism. The second dimension is the degree to which they are democratic or totalitarian.

Difficulty: Easy
Hill - Chapter 02 #132

133. Describe the difference between collectivism and individualism. Are these two ideologies compatible or in direct conflict? Which ideology seems to be gaining ground and which ideology is waning? Is this good news or bad news for international commerce? Explain your answer.

The term collectivism refers to a political system that stresses the primacy of collective goals over individual goals. The general ideal is that the needs of society as a whole are more important than individual freedoms. As a result, in a collectivist society, an individual's right to do something may be restricted because it runs counter to "the good of the society" or the "common good."

Individualism refers to a philosophy that an individual should have freedom in his or her economic and political pursuits. Moreover, individualism stresses that the interests of the individual should take precedence over the interests of the state.

The ideals exposed by individualism and collectivism are in direct conflict with one another. Over the past two decades, collectivism has been waning and individualism has been gaining steam. A wave of democratic ideals and free market economics is currently sweeping away socialism and communism worldwide. Evidence of this can be seen in Eastern Europe and the republics of the former Soviet Union. According to the author of the textbook, this represent good news for international business, since the pro-business and pro-free trade values of individualism create a favourable environment within which international business can thrive.

134. Draw a distinction between democracy and totalitarianism. Which political system facilitates the development of a free market economic system? Why?

Democracy and totalitarianism are at different ends of the political spectrum. Democracy refers to a political system in which government is by the people, exercised either directly or through elected representatives. Totalitarianism is a form of government in which one person or political parties exercise absolute control over all spheres of human life, and opposing political parties are prohibited. Most modern democratic states practice what is commonly referred to as representative democracy. In a representative democracy, citizens periodically elect individuals to represent them. There are four major forms of totalitarianism, including communist totalitarianism, theocratic totalitarianism, tribal totalitarianism, and right-wing totalitarianism.

Difficulty: Medium
Hill - Chapter 02 #134

135. What is intellectual property? What is the philosophy behind intellectual property law? Why is it so important to protect intellectual property rights? Are the laws that protect intellectual property rights fairly consistent across nations, or do they vary widely? Is this a problem?

Intellectual property refers to property, such as computer software, a screenplay, a music score, or the chemical formula for a new drug, which is the product of intellectual activity. The philosophy behind intellectual property law is to reward the originator of a new invention, book, musical record, clothes design, and the like for his or her new idea. Without strict intellectual property laws, there would be very little incentive for an individual to work hard to create these types of items. For instance, a person could work very hard and spend huge amounts of money to create a new animated film, and have someone else duplicate the film for the cost of a film duplicating machine and a blank tape.

Unfortunately, the protection of intellectual property rights varies greatly from country to country. This is a problem. Weak laws or the weak enforcement of intellectual property laws in foreign countries encourages the piracy of intellectual property. The world community is addressing this problem, but a satisfactory solution to this problem has yet to be found.

136. How important is innovation? Does innovation have a better chance of catching hold in a market economy or a planned economy? Explain your answer.

There is general agreement that innovation is the engine of long-run economic growth in virtually any country. Innovation has a much better chance of catching hold in a market economy opposed to a planned economy. The individual freedom (and opportunity for personal gain) associated with a market economy (like the economy in the U.S.) creates greater incentives for innovation than either a planned or mixed economy. In a market economy, anyone who has an innovative idea is free to try to develop the idea, and has the potential to reap substantial personal gain. This feature of a market economy provides a powerful incentive for people to work on innovative ideas. In contrast, in a planned economy the state owns all means of production. Consequently there is no incentive or opportunity for entrepreneurial individuals to try to develop valuable new innovations, since it is the state, rather than the individual, that captures all of the gains.

137. What is the difference between political risk, economic risk, and legal risk?

Political risk is the likelihood that political forces will cause drastic changes in a country's business environment that adversely affects the profit and other goals of a business enterprise. In contrast, economic risk is the likelihood that economic mismanagement will cause drastic changes in a country's business environment that adversely affects the profit and other goals of a business enterprise. Finally, legal risk is the likelihood that a trading partner will opportunistically break a contract or expropriate property rights.

Difficulty: Haro Hill - Chapter 02 #137 138. One major ethical dilemma facing firms from Western democracies is whether they should do business in totalitarian countries that routinely violate the human rights of their citizens. What is the principle argument on both sides of this issue? What is your opinion?

This question is designed to stimulate classroom discussion and/or encourage your students to think about a difficult ethical issue. The two sides to the debate alluded to above are as follows:

Arguments against Western democracies doing business in totalitarian countries: Some people argue that investing in totalitarian countries provides comfort to dictators and can help prop up repressive regimes that abuse basic human rights. Moreover, these critics argue that without the participation of Western investors in their economies, many repressive regimes would collapse and be replaced by more democratically inclined governments.

Arguments in favour of Western democracies doing business in totalitarian countries: In contrast, there are those who argue that investment by a Western firm, by raising the level of economic development of a totalitarian country, can help change it from within. They note that economic wellbeing and political wellbeing often go hand-in-hand.

139. A political system can be described in terms of whether it is more oriented towards collectivism or individualism. Is Canada oriented more towards collectivism or individualism?

The student could argue that Canada is both collectivist and individualistic, because we will take actions such as the proposed shutting down of coal fired plants in Ontario that will hurt individual interests (the power plant workers, coal supply companies) to protect collective rights (a clean environment and reduced pollution). However, the principle orientation in Canada is towards individualism, because your ultimate success depends on your individual efforts and the Charter of Rights and Freedoms is a Charter of individual freedoms.

Hill - Chapter 02 #139

140. Purchasing Power Parity (PPP) is described in the text as allowing a more direct comparison of living standards in different countries. What are the implications for business if PPP is used to assess the standard of living?

PPP is a relative measure of economic wealth. It adjusts the GNI to reflect the purchasing power of a country's currency within its own borders. In most cases the selling price of imported goods will not be adjusted to reflect this difference. As an example the price of a Mercedes is around $80,000 Canadian. The same price will be charged in other countries after adjustments for taxes and transportation costs. If we take the example of China - PPP is $4990, whereas GNI is $1100. In other words the dollar will buy four times as much or everything is four times cheaper than in the US. This does not mean that Mercedes will reduce their price by a factor of four.

141. A Canadian developer of software for automated coal mining equipment has been approached by a Russian mining conglomerate with an offer to cooperate on adapting the software to the Russian market. If the Canadian company agreed to work with the Russian company, they would have to reveal the software's source code (the source code is the key to software and is used to protect proprietary technology).

What are the "pros" of entering such an agreement?

Though Russia's record of protecting intellectual property is not particularly good, a student focused on sales could argue that the market is so large that they should take the risk. They could recommend using a contract to protect the source code.

A Canadian developer of software for automated coal mining equipment has been approached by a Russian mining conglomerate with an offer to cooperate on adapting the software to the Russian market. If the Canadian company agreed to work with the Russian company, they would have to reveal the software's source code (the source code is the key to software and is used to protect proprietary technology).

What are the "cons" of entering such an agreement?

The student could respond that Russia's record of protecting intellectual property is not particularly good, because of private action. If the company reveals the source code, there is a strong probability that the software will be copied and pirated. This will mean that the company could lose control of its most important technical advantage.

143. A Canadian developer of software for automated coal mining equipment has been approached by a Russian mining conglomerate with an offer to cooperate on adapting the software to the Russian market. If the Canadian company agreed to work with the Russian company, they would have to reveal the software's source code (the source code is the key to software and is used to protect proprietary technology).

Identify and describe any risk factor(s) that would be key to this business.

One key risk factor would be political risk in Russia. The takeover by the government of large private corporations (Yukos) because of "unpaid taxes" suggests that nationalization is still thought to be a preferred strategy in Russia. There is also the re-emergence of authoritarian acts such as the shutting down of private Russian media and the control of the rest of the media in Russia.

A Canadian developer of software for automated coal mining equipment has been approached by a Russian mining conglomerate with an offer to cooperate on adapting the software to the Russian market. If the Canadian company agreed to work with the Russian company, they would have to reveal the software's source code (the source code is the key to software and is used to protect proprietary technology).

If the Russian government does interfere with this business, identify and describe some of the future consequences of the Russian actions.

Reluctance by companies to invest in either country because of the possibility of public action. If coal prices fall then the potential of an economic crisis in both countries increases because of a lack of revenue and funds for investment. A restriction on private enterprise may also reduce entrepreneurial activity, which in the long term could cut the countries' growth rates. Deteriorating relations with their neighbouring countries is also a possibility.
